Singapore-based Clearbridge Medical Group (CBMG) opened its first centre in Hong Kong today (July 28), riding on Hong Kong's position as Asia's medical hub in its regional expansion.

The centre will offer patient care by deploying precision and data-driven medical technologies and bring in cutting-edge medical technologies, leveraging on strategic partnership with accredited laboratories and medical technology providers from overseas, including U.S., Germany, Australia and Japan.

The first business to be launched in Hong Kong is its personalized lifestyle product - metabolomics testing service aiming to promote and improve its clients' lifestyle. Other products in the pipeline include molecular diagnostic testing services targeting the diagnostics of cancers in a non-invasive way such as the applications of liquid biopsy technologies.

The Executive Director and Group CEO, Mr Jeremy Yee, said "Our wide access to medical centres across Asia in 11 countries and regions attracts a wide range of med-tech and service innovators in the healthcare, wellness and life science sectors. With our extended network of clinician-patient interaction points, Hong Kong is the perfect platform to deploy these advancements."

Associate Director-General of Investment Promotion Mr Charles Ng said, "I would like to extend my warm welcome to CBMG's new medical centre in Hong Kong. It will not only bring us innovative products, services and technologies in the healthcare sector but also add to the diversity of our Biotech cluster."
